YORK -- Somnang Laurendeau of York Sewer District, David DePerrio and Joe Dignam of York Water District received diplomas for their participation in Management Candidate School (MCS) which they attended one day each month from November 2017 to September 2018. Laurendeau, Deperrio and Dignam along with 20 other water professionals participated in Maine's ninth management curriculum designed to prepare mid-level drinking water and wastewater personnel for career advancement in utility management. The curriculum included personnel management, supervisory skills, labor relations, budgeting and engineering basics. Monthly classes were held at the Portland Water District. The MCS was coordinated by the Maine Joint Environmental Training Coordinating Committee (JETCC) with support from the Maine Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), Maine Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS), Maine Water Environment Association (MeWEA) and Maine Water Utilities Association (MWUA). Graduation ceremonies were held during the MeWEA annual convention on Thursday, Sept. 20 at Sunday River in Newry.
